The lamp stands or candlesticks of the temple of old had oil to burn the flame. In modern times there is candles of wax that are used both will only burn and maintain the fire for a period of time.

These lamps would only burn a certain amount of time before the flame would go out.

What is this fire that burns this flame?

The law is the fiery flame that goes forth.

And what fire do we blaze to the whole earth and how is it spread globally?
